The Multicultural and Equity Studies in Education (MESE) Area of Study consists of faculty and students who pursue social justice through high quality investigations of dimensions of the cultural politics of education. Inquiry focuses on the social, historical, cultural, and global intersections in teaching, learning, and educational research. Faculty and students in MESE are concerned with these constructs as interrelated, and theoretically mutually reinforcing, a fundamental notion in the study of multiculturalism and social justice. Students and faculty of the MESE have expertise in the following specializations: Critical Multicultural Teacher Education, Epistemologies and Theories in Multicultural and Equity Studies, Curricular Approaches to Multicultural and Equity Studies, Intersections of Power, Place and Resistance in Education. Students are encouraged to combine their interests in Multicultural and Equity Studies with interests in literacy studies, disability studies, children's literature, foreign and second language education, and early childhood and elementary education, among others.

Required Hours The doctoral program requires a minimum of 135 hours of graduate credit beyond a baccalaureate degree or 90 credits beyond a master's degree. Of the 90 hours, a minimum of 70 hours is in coursework while a minimum of 20 hours is dissertation credit; however, students often exceed the minimum required hours as the length of the program ultimately depends on the nature of study and the individualized plan created between the student and the advisory committee.

Residency Requirements The purpose of the residency requirement is to give students the opportunity to engage in intensive, concentrated study over an extended period of time in association with faculty members and other students in an atmosphere conducive to a high level of intellectual and scholarly activity. The following requirements must be fulfilled after the master's degree has been earned or after the first 45 hours of graduate credit has been received:

- A minimum of 45 graduate credit hours must be completed at The Ohio State University;
- a minimum of three out of four consecutive quarters with enrollment of at least ten graduate credit hours per quarter must be completed while in residence at The Ohio State University; and
- A minimum of 20 graduate credit hours over a period of at least two quarters must be completed after admission to candidacy.

Academic Standards To remain in good academic standing, graduate students must maintain a minimum 3.0 overall GPA.
