The education minor is designed to provide foundational knowledge about education within the larger social context and to offer a cross-disciplinary examination of the intersections of education, culture, and society. Students choosing to minor in education may wish to explore education as a possible career choice or they may be interested in studying current issues in the field as well as learning more about schools and schooling in today's society.

The education minor requires at least 15 credit hours. At least 6 credits need to be taken at the 3000-level or above.

Students who plan to complete the minor should meet with an academic advisor in the College of Education and Human Ecology to fill out the Minor Program Form, and then submit the approved form to their college of record. Any variation in the minor requires written approval from the coordinating advisor in the College of Education and Human Ecology. For further information about the minor program, contact the College of Education and Human Ecology.

Objectives:

1. Students will examine the legal, ethical, interpersonal and community issues that impact education across the life span of a learner.
2. Students will work closely with professionals as well as complete readings and tasks about current issues in education to provide students the opportunity to explore a career as an educator.
3. Students will examine the relationships between education and the social, political, philosophical, and cultural contexts of the larger society.
4. Students will study the hereditary and environmental factors that influence individuals' physical, cognitive, affective, social, and language development.
